

Hallesche Forschungen

Im Auftrag der Franckeschen Stiftungen zu Halle herausgegeben von Veronika Albrecht-Birkner, Hartmut Lehmann, Thomas Müller-Bahlke
und Udo Sträter

Band 62

Jesuit and Pietist Missions in the Eighteenth Century. Cross-Confessional Perspectives. Edited by Markus Friedrich and Holger
Zaunstöck. Halle 2022 (Hallesche Forschungen, 62).
VI, 200 S., 14 Abb., € 46,00; ISBN 978-3-447-11788-3; eISBN 978-3-447-39066-8

During the long eighteenth century, the hitherto predominantly Catholic missionary activity overseas received noticeable competition from new Christianisation projects initiated by Protestants. In this context, the anthology raises the question of how the missionaries of different Christian denominations in the mission areas dealt with one another when they came into contact on a daily basis.

In view of their particular early modern intra-Christian pluriconfessionality, two regions were chosen as the focus: the Eastern Mediterranean and the Indian subcontinent. As the eight contributions to the volume demonstrate in detail, these regions were frequently the site of interconfessional contacts, which sometimes followed the patterns of interpretation and action familiar from Europe, but frequently also followed their own patterns of development due to the specific contexts overseas.

Thus, the volume does not only contribute to the comparative study of Christian missions in the long eighteenth century. At the same time, it demonstrates the usefulness of global confessionalisation research, whose heuristic potential for analysing the history of non-European Christianity in the early modern period has hardly been tested thus far.

Content:

Markus Friedrich and Holger Zaunstöck: Introduction

Part I: Cross-Confessionalism in a Global Context

Chapter 1

Markus Friedrich: Catholics and Protestants Overseas: Confessionalism and Inter-Confessional Relations in a Global Perspective

Chapter 2

Christina Petterson: Money, Missions, Moravians, and Jesuits: Elements of a Globalising Process

Part II: Ottoman Empire

Chapter 3

Daniel Haas: The Institutum Judaicum et Muhammedicum and the Catholic Missionary Apparatus: Insights into a Largely Obscure Set of Relations

Chapter 4

Stefano Saracino: Accessing the Bodies and Souls of the Greeks with Medicine and Music: A Comparison of Jesuit and Pietist Missionary Practices in the Ottoman Empire

Chapter 5

Simon Mills: Missionary Philologist: Johann Heinrich Callenberg between the Catholic and Protestant Orients

Part III: India

Chapter 6

Thomas Ruhland: “Two Powerful and Cunning Enemies”: The Halle Pietists’ Cross- and Intra-Confessional Perception of Jesuits and Moravians in India during the Seven Years’ War (1756–1763)

Chapter 7

Gabriele Bellinzona: Between Jesuits and Other Roman Catholics: The Danish-English-Halle Mission in India and its Roman Catholic Competitors

Chapter 8

Will Sweetman: The Accommodation of Caste in the Tranquebar Mission (1706–1746)